

Divers Still Seeking Body Of Percy Reimer In Delaware

Johnsonville
Man Was Lost
Friday Night

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Divers risked their lives to find a drowned man in a death-trap of debris 80 feet beneath the Delaware River here last night. And early today they were still trying.

The search for the body of Percy Reimer, 43, of near Johnsonville, went on under the glare of huge floodlights mounted on both sides of the river.

The search had been going on since about 10 p.m. Friday, when a rowboat overturned and spilled him and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Plattenburg of Stroudsburg into the water off Point-of-Gap.

The Plattenburgs clung to the swamped little plywood boat 45 minutes before they were rescued by two vacationing men in a canoe. The canoe upset when Plattenburg tried to climb in.

THE STROUDSBURG man was brought ashore in a motor boat by David Shippers, Stroudsburg. His wife was ferried by the two canoers. State police in Stroudsburg were called. Dragging operations started about midnight.

All day Saturday the poling, rowing, probing and dragging continued back and forth around the spot where the rowboat was believed to have tipped over . . . between Point of Gap on the Pennsylvania side and Kittatinny Beach on the Jersey side.

Harold T. Hamlen took up a light plane from East Stroudsburg airport to try to spot the body. It is believed easier to see to the bottom of the river from a plane than from a boat under proper conditions.

WORD of the reported drowning had spread through newspapers and radio and spectators flocked to the scene. Hundreds of people lined the banks on both sides of the river. Railroad detective Harold Larison was called to the area to keep fascinated watchers off the DL&W railroad tracks. When night came the search was suspended. Yesterday the divers were called in.

Rescue crews and first aid units from the surrounding area converged on the area. Men from different units worked shoulder to shoulder to seek the body of a man they had never known.

Trucks and equipment bore the names Cranberry Lake, Belvidere, Phillipsburg, Budd Lake, all in New Jersey, and Telford, Pa. Stroudsburg Fire Co. sent down its portable generator at nightfall to help with the lighting problem. During the afternoon the first divers went down. They were skin divers—husky men in bathing trunks, wearing only diving helmets to take them down below the river surface.

A CRANBERRY Lake man descended as deep as 65 feet. At that depth he stood on a flat rock. Alongside the rock, he could not touch nor see bottom.

The Cranberry Lake men continued their watery prowling in the gloom under the river until the Telford diving unit arrived.

The Telford men had deep-water equipment suitable for 300 to 500-foot plunges. As daylight disappeared and night deepened, they made it ready.

Operations were shifted to Kittatinny Beach. Two small floats were towed out to the spot where the deep hole was scooped in the river floor by channel water. They were anchored.

IN A HUGE arc of more than half a mile along the stretch of new highway on the Jersey side, hundreds of cars were parked bumper-to-bumper off the side of the road across from Point-of-Gap. They stood . . . and stood . . . and waited . . . watching the preparations. Hundreds more people waited and watched on the old Route 611 winding through Delaware Water Gap gorge. Some climbed down along the river bank—risking their necks to see the divers risking theirs in search of a man reported drowned.

By the time it was night the Telford men were ready to go.

There were nine men on the two floats in the river. They wouldn't give their names. "We're all part of the same units. We all do the work," one said. The men are all volunteers. Cranberry Lake men ferried coffee and sandwiches to the Telford men on the floats, ran errands for them, fetched lantern batteries, patrolled the slender rubber air hose which stretched some 300 feet from the gasoline air pump on shore to the floats.

DR. CHARLES SHAPPELL, chief of the Phillipsburg Emergency Squad, squatted on his heels on shore, watching across the water. It was the second or third time he and his volunteer crew had been called to watch bodies recovered in the same area.

Out at the float Capt. William Miller of the Telford unit directed preparations for the first dive.

At nearby Stoddard's Inn one of the Cranberry Lake skin divers was relaxing with some buddies and a glass of beer. "It's lousy down there," he said. "All tree stumps, and wire, and junk washed into that hole." Then he grinned and started kidding a Belvidere emergency crew driver again, the afternoon's diving apparently forgotten.

East Germans Continue Their Sabotage Of Red Operations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U. S. Information Agency said yesterday that widespread sabotage of railways, mines, factories and farms persists in Communist East Germany "despite efforts to suppress resistance to Red rule."

In a dispatch to overseas information posts, made public here, the agency said damage in nationalized dockyards alone was estimated at 14 million marks. At a rate of 16 East marks to the dollar, this would mean damage approaching a value of one million dollars but officials said the dollar figure gives an inadequate indication of the real impact of sabotage on East German economy.

Train wrecks, destruction of coal mine equipment and important losses of electrical equipment production were cited as examples of sabotage.

THE AGENCY quoted Radio Hamburg as saying that in the first three months of this year there were 327 acts of destruction in nationalized industry in East Germany and that authorities had failed to solve any of them.

Statistics smuggled to West Berlin by refugees, the agency said, showed 7 collisions between trains, 5 between trains and motor vehicles, and railway accidents resulting in 46 deaths and injuries to 248 persons as a result of hundreds of cases of tampering or breakdowns in connection with electric signaling equipment and tracks.

Soviet Press Raising Din Over Germany

By Tom Whitney

AP Foreign Staff

THE SOVIET press is raising a din about United States and British plans to grant West Germany its sovereignty regardless of whether the French cooperate or not.

"How they are blackmailing France!"

"Attacks of the United States on France!"

"Pressure on France is being intensified!"

SUCH ARE typical headlines from Moscow newspapers.

It's obvious the Russians are extremely sensitive on these subjects. Their press comments, though they are printed in Russian for Russian readers, nevertheless seem to be clearly aimed at arousing France.

"If this is the way Britain and America are dealing with France even before she has ratified the Paris treaty, then how will they slight her if she submits to the transoceanic dictation and gives herself over to the mercy of the Bonn revengers?" wrote Ivestia a few days ago.

THE TONE of the Soviet press makes it appear the Kremlin was caught by surprise by the announcement of the British and American governments were going to study the question of granting sovereignty to West Germany without the French if the French fail to ratify the agreements on the European Defense Community and West German sovereignty.

Apparently the Communist leadership in Moscow considered that the West would be completely stymied on both these questions so long as the French dawdled possibly for a long, long time.

Meanwhile, as the Russians knew, the longer the West was delayed on these basic questions the greater the tendency there would be in Germany for certain groups to begin to look for a way out through agreement with the Soviet Union.

THE RUSSIANS held out bait to such Germans, suggesting they would find mighty sympathetic ears in the Kremlin. They played on German memories of the Nazi-Soviet alliance.

At the same time they held out similar bait to the French. The only solution for France, their propaganda implied, was to abandon alliance with Britain and the United States and the associated agreements with West Germany which went along with it in favor of return to the traditional French policy of alliance with Russia against Germany.

Thus the failure of the West to make progress toward final settlement of the role of West Germany in the Western Alliance enabled the Communists to play on the ancient fears of the Germans and the French for each other, to set them against one another.

The current Moscow reaction indicates just how intensely the Kremlin wants Britain and the United States to fail in getting France and West Germany to work together in common plans for defense against communism.

EIGHTEEN-YEAR-OLD Jacqueline Edith Werkheiser, of Reeders, Pa., is the latest entrant in the Miss Pocono "Junior Jinx" contest being conducted by Shawnee Inn and The Daily Record in conjunction with Tex and Jinx McCrary and the National Broadcasting Co., Inc.

A graduate of Pocono High School at Tannersville, Miss Werkheiser is active in music as well as sports.

During her high school career she was active in the school band and chorus. She also has done some modeling. Her athletic interests include tennis, golf, basketball, volleyball, horseback riding, swimming, dancing and skating. She is 5 feet 5 inches tall and weighs 110-pounds.

THE MISS POCONO "Junior Jinx" contest is to find a very special young lady who is interested in a radio-TV career. She has to live up to some pretty high standards: Must be 21 years of age or under, good looking enough to model, sports-minded enough to play or learn to play tennis and swim gracefully, poised enough to wear fashionable clothes, and she must have the enthusiasm, intelligence and curiosity necessary to be trained as a television reporter.

A flying start in a radio-TV career, with a contract for personal appearances, worth at least five thousand dollars in a one year period, and a two-week all expense paid vacation to El Rancho Vegas via TWA will be awarded the winner of the "Junior Jinx" contest.

Eliminations for the Eastern Pennsylvania contestants will be held at Shawnee Inn and Country Club Saturday, August 7. The girl selected will then be eligible to compete in the finals with nine other district winners on September 12 before an expected crowd of 85,000 persons at the Long Island Hospital Star Night... one of the nation's largest entertainment events held annually on Long Island and featuring the country's top stage and TV stars.

THE CONTEST is sponsored by Tex and Jinx McCrary who will feature the winner on their radio and television shows and personally promote her career. This girl will in fact and in name be a "Junior Jinx", but she will have in a few weeks time the opportunities and public showing that Jinx Falkenburg McCrary worked for years to attain.

Nearly 3,000 Free Chest X-Rays Are Taken By TB Society

Resorts, Industry Covered

NEARLY 3,000 free chest X-rays were given during the two-week drive ending Friday.

According to Mrs. Estelle Fleming, executive secretary of the Monroe County Tuberculosis and Health Society, the total number of persons X-rayed totalled 2,915 for the ten days.

Nearly all those X-rayed during the July drive were foodhandlers, resort personnel and industrial workers. The drive was designed specifically to provide X-rays for those persons.

TOTAL NUMBER of persons X-rayed without charge during the two 1954 drives stands at 10,088, Mrs. Fleming said. During the first drive this year—when emphasis was placed on residents of the area—a total of 7,173.

Mrs. Fleming and Horace G. Heller, president of the Society, expressed gratitude to all resort owners, local restaurant owners and their employees and to all industries in the county for their "outstanding cooperation" during the specialized July drive.

More than two dozen stops were made by the portable and mobile X-ray units during the July X-ray campaign.

THE CHEST X-ray is extremely beneficial in the detection of lung diseases, heart ailments and other danger points in the chest area. The outcome of this year's double drive compares well with the X-ray campaign for three years ago, Mrs. Fleming said, when 7,919 persons were X-rayed.

Foil Catches Fire Around Roast Turkey

DELAWARE WATER GAP firemen answered a call at 5:30 p.m. yesterday at the Cherry Valley Summer home of Jerry Volpe, a New York resident.

Firemen said Mrs. Volpe had been roasting a turkey in the oven of her electric stove. The turkey was wrapped in foil and caught on fire, officials said.

Mrs. Volpe grabbed the turkey out of the oven; ran to a neighbor's house and called firemen.

The fire was out, however, when the department arrived. Fire chief James Anthony reported the drippings from the turkey must have fallen on bare electric coils at the bottom of the oven, burned out and left only a large amount of smoke.

The Marine rammed home the bolt of the rifle, and the bullet exploded. The cartridge case burst, and a piece of it wounded the Marine's upper lip, police said.

Just Between Us
—By Bobby Westbrook

Cleaning a cellar is never so rewarding as cleaning an attic, and it's a whole lot dirtier. The dead wasps and dust of an attic are much less disagreeable than the ash-crusted cobwebs and moldering things in a cellar.

Besides you can lose yourself in re-reading old diaries and looking over ancient term papers, and inspecting fading snapshots and outmoded clothes in an attic. There's a sort of sentimental touch to the whole business.

Nobody could ever wax sentimental over the dust-strewn jar of some unappetizing concoction that you "put up" in the days of food rationing and then forgot about till this day. Talk about bacteriological warfare, I'll bet there are enough germs in those jars to wipe out one of the minor nations all by themselves.

Cellars are also the boneyard of the house where odd casters, broken curtain rods, knobs from heavens-knows-what and old coal-oil lamps collect, and with them the dust of centuries.

We did find one unusual item behind a rafter. It looks rather like a plate from a coffin and says "Blessed are the dead who died in the Lord, AE 37 years." That started all sorts of speculations and wondering whether the casket itself might be under the dirt in the combain.

It was scarcely a light-hearted find, and we looked like a couple of ghouls, with only white eyeballs gleaming through the grime, as we inspected it. And quite weary enough to say, "Move Over".

Historians Visits Home Of W. Penn

Monroe County historians, fifty strong, made a pilgrimage to Pennsbury Manor, the home of William Penn, which has been restored at its original site at Morristown, Pa. Cars left Thomas St. about 8:45, each furnished with a map of the trip provided by the chairman, Roger Dunn. This meant they did not have the worry of staying in a line.

They arrived at Pennsbury Manor about 11 o'clock and had a guided tour through the restoration. They returned to Morristown for lunch at Pennsbury Manor Inn, before going to Doylestown where they toured the Bucks County Museum.

They found a three-story building with the evolution of many facets of American life, with separate rooms for agriculture, commerce, art and other phases of life. As an example of the thoroughness of the exhibits, members recalled one section devoted entirely to wrenches down through the years.

An unscheduled highlight of their trip was the visit to Font Hill, a castle in the midst of Doylestown, which a retired archaeologist had filled with decorative tile, even on the ceilings, and with other rare objects, including an urn dating back to 2000 BC.

The trip took the place of the regular summer meeting of the Monroe County Historical Society of which Dr. Nathan Meyer is president.

Rev. C. A. Steigerwalt will conduct the memorial service and Rev. E. O. Steigerwalt of Selinsgrove will give the invocation. Entertainment will feature a monologue by Mrs. Marvin Ohl, Summit Hill and music by the Hungry Five, of Lehighton.

Silhouette
Will Blouse
This Fall

By Dorothy Roe

Associated Press Women's Editor. It will be easy to recognize a new fall suit, dress or coat this fall. There's a completely new feeling about fall fashions which have been shown in New York and are now on order for delivery to shops throughout the country.

Most important change is the relaxing of the corseted silhouette to a new, free-and-easy line which allows the wearer room to breathe, and will be welcomed with cries of pure joy by those women who have been trying to cram rubber-tite midriffs into honed cinchers and long bras, to fit the skin-tight fit of the princess or Empire silhouette.

The corseted midriff is still present in many lines, but this fall women will have a choice, and the bloused top dress or suit is the newest thing on the fashion horizon.

The costume is more important than ever for fall, consisting of dressy, low-necked wool dress covered up by a matching jacket or coat. It is shown in a variety of fabrics and colors, is the versatile dawn-to-dark kind of outfit beloved by most busy women.

Tweeds in every color and many weaves and weights are big news in the fabric lineup. Often they are combined with satin for a dressed-up look. A satin hat and blouse transform a tweed suit from a workaday costume to one dressy enough for a cocktail date. One designer shows matching or contrasting satin linings and weskits with high-color tweed suits.

The loose-jacket suit is new and important, sometimes with semi-fitted front, loose shirttail back.

Longer jackets also are new for suits. These are wrist-length, semi-fitted and carefully shaped.

The barrel jacket which is loose and rounded about, casually hugs the hipline, also is important in the fall lineup.

Necklines make news for fall. Many suits and coats have wide, flat collars, often standing away from the neck all the way round.

The sailor collar is seen on suits, coats and dresses, sometimes even done in fur on a cloth coat.

Meanwhile "Oklahoma" continues at Melody Circle thru Sunday night, July 25.

Sammy White, star of stage and screen, whose recent picture credits include "Living It Up", the Dean Martin-Jerry Lewis madcap, and "About Mrs. Leslie", starring Shirley Booth, heads a distinguished cast embracing Walter Long, Jet McDonald, Sonny Richards, John Shanks, Sam Riga, Adrienne Angel and Howard Ross. The cast is abetted by talented singing and dancing chorus, plus a full Melody Circle orchestra. Mr. White's fabulous antics enlivened the mighty proceedings of "Pal Joey", Melody Circle's initial 1954

Other films in which he has appeared successfully are "Yes, My Darling Daughter", "The Roaring Twenties" and "A Letter to Three Wives." His television assignments include appearances on Philco Playhouse, Lux Theater, Studio One and Suspense. He has recently completed a trip to Europe during which he made a movie on location.

"High Button Shoes" concerns two daffy "con" artists who come to Trenton, New Jersey, during the early part of this century, and try to dupe the innocent populace. The lifting musical score by Julie Styne and Sammy Cahn abounds with such tuneful delights as "Papa, Won't You Dance With Me", "On a Sunday By the Sea", "You're My Girl", and "Nobody Ever Died for Dear Old Rutgers."

Bath Trips Roseto In Ninth, 5-4

Bath—Bath, cellar-dweller in the Mountain League, rose up to surprise Roseto here yesterday by 5-4 margin, as the host aggregation pushed its winning run into a wild out with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Sherwood Sildies tripped for Phil Silman in the ninth, after the first batter had been retired, and then ed home as Dick Walakowitz popped a perfect "squeeze" bunt into the infield.

Bad Inning

Walakowitz breezed to victory in the pitching mound except for the third inning when Roseto scored four times.

Bath opened hostilities with a three-run burst off Dave "Doc" Schiavone in the first and then did behind as Roseto enjoyed its fifth inning. But a determined Bath club wouldn't quit and bounded back with a singleton in the fifth tie matters at 4-4.

Bill Yantrasis homered to park the Bath offense which featured four hits. Roseto accounted for six safeties off Walakowitz.

70 Paintings Are Sold At Sidewalk Show

MORE THAN 70 paintings by 18 individual artists were sold during the two-day annual sidewalk art show.

Olivia Dreher, show chairman, said last night that a total of 65 exhibitors registered. There were 860 pictures in the show, Miss Dreher said, along with 50 black-and-white photographic prints by members of the Pocono Camera Club and numerous crafts articles.

New artists registering for the show on Saturday were Edwin Knapp, Sally Walton, Dave Miller, Arlene Fritz and Mae Price, Miss Dreher said. Visitors—including guests at area resorts—came from as far afield as Virginia and Massachusetts, she said.

MILLER WAS one of three artists who conducted a "sidewalk art business" during the show Saturday. While Miller made charcoal sketches of profiles and three-quarter views of his subjects, Rachel Bray was busy doing oil portraits and Irene Douglas was doing pastels.

An added feature of the show were nightly showings of colored slides in Courthouse Square. On Friday night George Reimer was the commentator and O. H. Wilson ran the slide projector. Saturday night slides by Olive Hay and Chester Aument on Michigan and Mexico were shown.

The second of two Summer shows regularly scheduled for Stroudsburg will be held on Aug. 27 and 28.

PAINTINGS will be hung in the same location, Miss Dreher said. Walter Wyckoff is president of the Pocono Mountains Art Group, sponsor of the shows.

Miss Dreher will again serve as chairman for the August show, assisted by A. A. Widmer.

Gloria Vanderbilt Will Be Starred At Playhouse

GLORIA VANDERBILT Stokowska will make her stage debut Aug. 16 at Pocono Playhouse in Mountaintown.

A former socialite and now wife of the world-famed symphony orchestra conductor Leopold Stokowski, Madame Stokowska will be seen in one of Ferenc Molnar's most famous plays, "The Swan."

Other attractions for the remainder of the 1954 Summer season at the Playhouse, according to Mrs. Rowena Stevens, owner-manager, will be:

"MY THREE ANGELS", starring Edward Andrews, Liam Sullivan and Peter Donat. The play was written by Samuel and Bella Spewack.

It was staged by Jose Ferrer in New York production; ran for more than a year. The play will be seen starting Monday, July 26.

"You Can't Take It With You", starring Charles Coburn. This George Kaufmann-Moses Hart play won the Pulitzer Prize in 1937 when it was first presented on Broadway. Starts at the Playhouse Aug. 2.

"The Sin of Pat Muldoon", a new play, starring George Andrews, Sara Haden and (possibly) Art Smith, who appeared successfully on the local stage two years ago in Sidney Howard's "They Knew What They Wanted." The play starts Aug. 9.

"DARLING, DARLING" (Ami), starring Gypsy Rose Lee, an adaptation of a French play as the adaptor of "Gigi". Play will be seen the week of Aug. 23. It's new and on trial.

"The Other Devil", also a new play, stars Patricia Benoit, the "girl friend and bride" on the "Mister Peepers" television show. Begins Aug. 30.

"SABRINA FAIR", with a cast of players from New York, as yet undecided.

This will mark the first time the Playhouse will present a hit show while it is still running on Broadway. Mrs. Stevens said.
